THAT DULL ACHING.

Don't worry and complain about a bad back. Get rid of it! For weak kidneys, lame and aching backs, your neighbors recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your neighbor? Read this statement:

Mrs. Charles Austin, Maple street, Grayling, says: "Two years ago my back caused me trouble and mornings when I got up my back felt tired out. It seemed as though my back always ached, especially when I did any stooping or lifting work. I couldn't sleep at all and felt tired and worn out. I became nervous, irritable and depressed. Black spots bothered me greatly in the morning and they made me very dizzy. I had headaches too, and I was so run down I didn't know what to do. I saw in the paper how Doan's Kidney Pills were liked so I got several boxes at Lewis' Drug Store. After using them they cured me and I felt fine."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Austin had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y. Adv.

SHOW THE FLAG.

Show the flag and let it wave
As a symbol of the brave;
Let it float upon the breeze
As a sign for each who sees
That beneath it, where it rides,
Loyalty today abides.

Show the flag and signify
That it wasn't born to die;
Let its colors speak for you
That you still are standing true,
True in sight of God and man
To the work that flag began.

Show the flag that all may see
That you serve humanity.
Let it whisper to the breeze
That comes singing through the trees
That whatever storms descend
You'll be faithful to the end.

Show the flag and let it fly,
Cheering every passerby,
Men that may have stepped aside,
May have lost their old-time pride,
May behold it there and then
Consecrate themselves again.

Show the flag! the day is gone,
When men blindly hurry on Serving only gods of gold,
Now the spirit that was cold
Warns again to courage find.
Show the flag and fall in line!

ATTEND SOUTHERN MICHIGAN RALLY.

A large delegation from Grayling Review No. 76, Woman's Benefit Association of the Maccabees, Grayling attended the Southern Michigan rally held at Lansing June 4 and 5.

Grayling lodge had been invited to confer the first degree work and they went there with the intention of putting Grayling on the map and according to all reports they covered themselves with glory a foot thick.

The officers and guard team from Grayling initiated a class of fifty candidates in the first degree, in the presence of the officers and members from all the large Reviews of the state and the Supreme Commander, Miss West and State Commander, Mrs. Droelle.

Grayling had the distinction of having the largest delegation, had traveled the longest distance and were of course, the finest looking lot of ladies at the meeting, and this is no idle boast either. And they were the first to arrive in Lansing.

The officers and guard team received marked praise for the manner in which they performed their work, Miss West publically praising their drill work, saying it was letter "A" perfect. In her address, she also said that anyone who ever visited Grayling was impressed with the enthusiastic and efficient manner in which the people there always worked for anything they undertook to do.

The beautiful and inspiring drills and floor work of the order were exemplified by guard teams from Detroit, Grand Rapids, Saginaw, Jackson and Lansing. The Junior Rose team from Detroit were a treat which everyone enjoyed to the fullest extent this being the first ritualistic work a Junior team has presented.

Those from Grayling who attended the rally were the following officers: Mrs. Christenson, Mrs. Heric, Mrs. Bowen, Mrs. P. Johnson, Mrs. McPhee, Mrs. Jos. McLeod, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Ewalt and Mrs. Balhoff.

Pianist—Mrs. Gothro.
The guard team was composed of the following ladies:

Captain—Mrs. J. W. Letzkus.
Color Bearers—Mrs. Hull and Mrs. King.

Guards—Mrs. Schreck, Mrs. Cody, Mrs. Brennan, Mrs. Underhill, Mrs. Knibbs, Mrs. Hum, Mrs. Kidston, Mrs. Hanson, Mrs. Richards, Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Karnes and Mrs. Horan.

The W. B. A. O. T. M., although not an old order in point of years is one of the strongest in the country. They have a reserve fund of 12½ million dollars, have paid in claims since organization, 19 million dollars, net admitted assets 13 million dollars, and protection in force 158 million dollars.

Mrs. Emma Salt, district deputy, who has shown so much interest in the local review was present and was very enthusiastic in the way they did their work.

TWO EUROPEAN FIGHT CHAMPIONS ARRIVE

Georges Papin and Jules Landers.

Georges Papin's hopes for a warm reception from American boxing lovers met with a cruel setback on his first appearance in this country. He met Lew Tender, the second man to the champion of the lightweights, in a Jersey City ring, and resigned in the sixth round.

The Frenchman came in curious fashion, as Papin went down from exhaustion in the sixth without being struck. He had plenty of excuse, however, as he was floored four times in the fifth round.

The Frenchman proved lame, but will not measure up to the American standard of fighters. He is a good boxer, and his face could be started in at the wrong end of his boxing, as Tender is a real champion for Benny Leonard's cross.

When Papin arrived in this country he was accompanied by Jules Landers, Belgian middleweight champion and sporting partner for Georges Carpentier. All three boxers are under the management of Francis Deschamps.

GAMBLING IN EARLY YEARS OF BASEBALL

Intimately Identified With Game in the Late Sixties.

Much Harm Was Done to Sport by Progenitors of Present-Day Followers of Race Track Through Element of Chance.

The old Cincinnati team was the pioneer salaried club of baseball, though there is a conflict in authorities as to the exact year in which the team went under salary. Edwin A. Goervey writes in Leslie's. In the Spalding official baseball guide the year is given as 1868, while Albert G. Spalding, in his book of memoirs, "Baseball," gives the year as 1860, and cites enough detail to make it evident that the latter date is correct. Anyway, it was in 1860 that the Red Stockings made their phenomenal record. The official records give 81 games won, none lost, and one tied with the Haymakers of Troy, N. Y. There is no doubt about the tie game and that no contests were lost, but both Mr. Spalding and Harry Wright, the heads of the team, give 50 as the total of games won.

From ancient baseball lore, particularly the reminiscences of Mr. Spalding, who played a leading role in putting the game on its feet, later saving it from the gambling and commercial element, and did much to popularize American sports generally, it is gleaned that gambling was intimately identified with the game in the late sixties, much harm being done to the sport by the progenitors of the present-day followers of the racetracks and other places affording opportunity for financial gain through the element of chance.

DIAMOND NOTES

Bernie Nels looks and acts a lot like Benny Kauff.

Hughie Jennings is to retire at the end of this year.

George Whitford seems to play third base about as good as anybody.

Pete Adams, first baseman, finally decided to report to Little Rock.

The New Jersey legislature has passed a bill permitting Sunday baseball.

Under Robbin's pitching staff continues to look like the best in the league.

An encouraging part of the Cubs' batting has been the work of Dode Paskert.

Next thing Charley Ebberts knows his workmen will strike for a nine-hour game.

Some of the alleged fence busters are rather slow in getting their war clubs in action.

Le Bourgeois of the Phillies, is one of the most promising stars of the baseball season.

The only thing the Giants are hitting these days are the smooth spots on the tologian.

Charles Williams of the White Sox has stepped right along since the American league race started.

Some day Ruth will try to hunt and the opposing players will be frozen stiff in their tracks with surprise.

Baseball makes a big hit with the Japanese, who go to the Polo grounds in large numbers this season.

Heinie Zimmerman is playing with a semipro team in the Bronx. He has given up hope of returning to McGraw.

"Buck" Freeman, former White Sox pitcher, has been signed by the Saginaw club in the Michigan-Ontario league.

Jack Dunn of Baltimore has ruled the colleges again and secured an infielder named Mariette from Guilford college.

A good team may get down to the bottom of the percentage column through bad luck but it is hard to keep it there.

Austin McHenry of the Cardinals has been flourishing games this season with great fortunes that have nipped base runners.

With the Braves and the Red Sox out of the race, Boston fans might take some interest in Harvard's swimming team.

The Atlanta club asked waivers on Pitcher Monte Prieste and the Mobile club took him. He won his first time out for Mobile.

The Harvard crew will be in the trial races for the Olympic games. They will row under the colors of the Union Boat club.

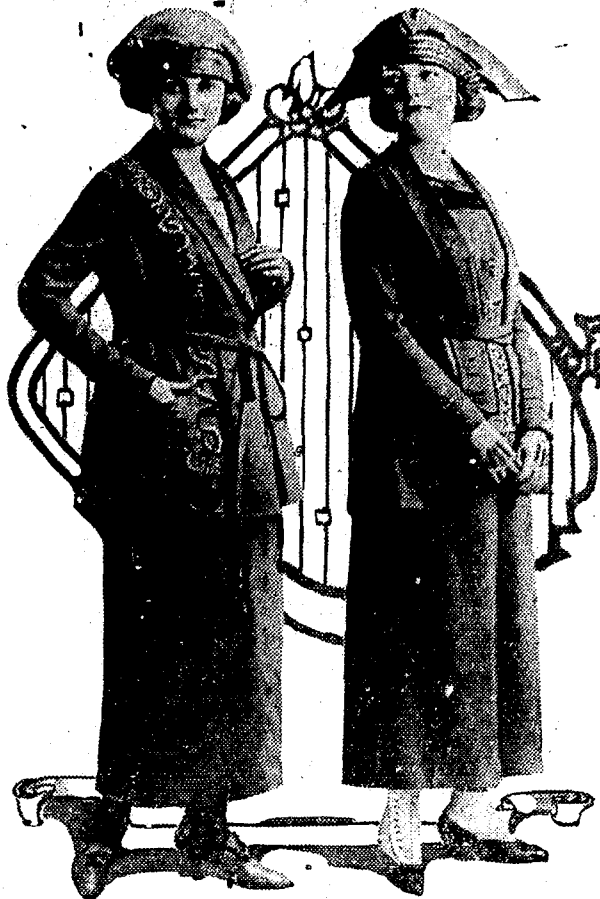

The Brooklyn Dodgers have announced the release of Catcher Beyers to the Rochester club of the International league.

If the Reds can keep in front now what will they do when their star pitcher, Eddie Roush, starts hitting the bouncing bulb?

"Lefty" Odenwald, Hudson, Wis., high school pitcher, will report to the Cleveland Americans at the close of his school year in June.

Joe Letter, the recruit outfielder, twice tried by the Cubs on spring training trips and found wanting, has been released to the Kansas City Blues.

TWO MODEL SUITS FOR SUMMER WEAR

THE first suits launched for spring included simple severely-tailored models with a fair representation, others, more numerous, in which coats were cut on usual suit lines, but more or less elaborated with decorations of various kinds, and still others in which coats were abbreviated to jackets. Besides these there were some fanciful and elaborate models—out of the class of utility suits to which any of the others belonged. Now that these several styles have been tested out, we find the models cut on usual suit lines, but not belonging to the severely tailored class, have outdistanced both the plainer and the more elaborate styles. These conservatively cut and moderately trimmed suits prove to be the favorites for all-around wear.

Two very fine models of the suit for general wear are pictured above. One of them has a plain skirt with lapped seams, cut wide enough for comfort in walking. A handsome vest, of tulle, is embroidered with flowers and adorned with a band of velvet ribbon across the top and it is set in the coat which does not close at the front. Lapels at each side extend not quite to the bottom of the vest, and from the line downward, there are bound button holes in them. Binding finishes the edges of the slit pockets in the skirt of the coat, at each side. The straight cut sleeves are unusual and attractive. They are ended by cuffs formed by stitching bands of the cloth to a tulle-like foundation. A very narrow belt extends twice about the waist.

The coat in the second suit has a narrow shawl collar and fastens with a single button at the waistline. It is embroidered in silk in a band that extends from shoulder to hem and spreads across the pockets. The narrowest girdles tie at the front and its long ends are finished with silk balls.

Hats to Grace Summer Affairs

ALL the affairs of summer are graced by the most beautiful millinery that the year calls out—since the glory of the passing season is reflected in headwear, it could not be otherwise. June sees the climax of picturesque, colorful, flower-trimmed and transparent hats that add beauty to its graduations and weddings and to all the gayeties that follow, to the end of summer. In July and August similar hats come in, made in all white or pale colors; usually they join their more splendid sisters and are worn for sports and outings. Their career is brief and joyous; in them we bid farewell to summer, for they vanish with the first hint of cold weather.

One of these exquisite, all-white hats appears among other summer hats in the group above. It has a crown of white tulle, encircled by a fringe of white tulle. Worn with a frock of white georgette or organdie it makes a costume dainty enough to rival the roses in the hands of its wearer.

A beautiful hat for the heart of summer is shown made of satin braid in blue with a sash of brown satin ribbon about its crown and a half wreath of grasses, grapes, roses and their foliage about it. The wide brim is softened at the edge with a fold of brown malines. Such a hat has much charm to lend its wearer. We might expect an appreciative girl to pick out for herself the sport hat shown, made of tulle silk in green and faced with white braid. It has a border of narrow ribbon and a sash of it, tied in a saucy bow at the front. Finally there is a smart street hat with tulle crown and brilliant turned-back brim of piping braid. This is in black with a tight rose also in black, at the front, set in white velvet leaves.

To Launder Georgette. To launder georgette waists so they will not shrink, let soak in lukewarm water with a sack of soap chips for perhaps half an hour, depending on how soiled the waist is; rinse in several tepid waters, squeeze out water between the hands; do not wring or twist the waist, and iron wet with an iron as hot as possible without scorching. Wet georgette is very pliable and may be gently pulled and stretched while pressing. Discarded, shrunken waists may be reclaimed in this manner and restored to their original size.

Wooden Sports Hats. As remarkable as the glazed hat of Captain Cuttle of Dombey and Son fame are the wooden sports hats of this summer. Wood fiber, not unlike shavings in appearance and as light in weight as any straw, is made into sports hats of all shapes and sizes. To make the trimming the wood is shaved and applied like little quills that curl slightly at the ends. These hats are in rose color—a shade very popular in Paris for sports clothes—bright blue, orange and, in fact, almost every shade.

Long Gloves. With the none too becoming short sleeves gaining steadily in popularity, it means that long gloves, despite the exorbitant prices asked for them these days, will be worn, will have to be worn, by hundreds of women not blessed with pretty arms. Long white gloves will doubtless be worn by the smartest women, but for those looking for the odd and unusual in dress the new two-color gloves will immediately appeal.

They are made of washable cape skin with embroidered backs in black, tan and brown. The color combinations are pearly with putty, black with white, gray with sand and Newport with brown.

Neck and Sleeve Finish. White collars and cuffs have been a little out of the running for some time past, but now their use is returning and women are welcoming them. All this spring's model gowns have a touch of white at the neck

Backache Slowing You Up?

Are you dragging along with a dull, throbbing backache? Feel lame morning, tired all day; suffer torturing twinges at every move? Often the kidneys are to blame. A cold, strain or overwork congests the kidneys; poisons accumulate and mysterious aches and pains result. You may have headaches and dizzy spells, too, with perhaps bladder irregularity. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped thousands. Ask your neighbor!

A Michigan Case

Gilbert Ouellette, cigar manufacturer, 354 Marine St., Marine City, Mich., says: "My kidneys were in bad condition. The action was irregular and annoying. I had severe pains across my back and when I would get up in the morning my back would be stiff and lame. Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in the family with good results, so I tried them. They soon cured me of the trouble and I am glad to tell others about this splendid medicine."

Boys and Girls of New Jersey Town Have Made Record of Which They Are Proud.

Triumphal Arch of Titus, at Rome, and the Colosseum, Are Splendid in Their Ruin.

If there has been less talk of the sorrowful problem in Bridgeport, New Jersey, than elsewhere, it is quite explainable. Not to be outdone by their European sisters and brothers in matters of thrift and industry, 25 youngsters in that town have hoisted $181,000 in United States thrift stamps this year, thanks to their own hard work.

Boys and girls alike have welcomed opportunities of doing remunerative dishwashing, sweeping, dusting, store clerking, baby-sitting, errand-running, etc., with the goal of economy symbolized by government stamps ahead of them. The more ambitious have undertaken cutting weeds, carrying coal, sifting ashes, selling papers, raising chickens, cleaning pavements, and some have even won prizes to add to their savings.

Having found that time can be converted into money it is doubtful whether these boys will again find the street corner a worthwhile place for spending idle hours, or the girls be content to waste periods in porch chatter.

The triumphal arch of Titus in Rome was built in 70 A. D., to commemorate the defeat of the Jews, and was dedicated to the Emperor Titus after his death. It is adorned with fine sculptures in relief. On the frieze outside is a sacrificial procession and on the inner side Titus is seen crowned by Victory in a quadriga driven by Roma. On another part of the arch is a triumphal procession of Jews, the Table of Show Bread and the seven-branched candelstick. In the center of the vaulting the consecrated emperor is seen being carried to heaven by an eagle.

In 1822 the arch was a set of ruins, and some of the medieval additions were removed and it was partly reconstructed. The colosseum, with seats for 50,000 spectators, originally called the Flavian amphitheater, was completed by Titus in the year 80 A. D., and derives its later name, probably, from a colossal statue of Nero. The colosseum is now all in ruins.

Price and Percentage. Increase of price when measured in percentage is very often indirectly given. When the price doubles the increase is 100 per cent, but many people describe it as an increase of 50 per cent.

ITCH!

A WAR-TIME ILL THAT'S SPREADING HUNT'S SALVE CURES IT!

BRED in the war trenches of Europe, a wave of ordinary ITCH is spreading over the country. This skin disease, history shows, has always prevailed, following wars and the concentration of armies. It was common during the Civil War and following that conflict. There was an epidemic of the Itch after the Spanish-American War. Now history is repeating itself after the great European struggle.

Returned soldiers and those with whom they come in contact will find a recognized remedy for the Itch in Hunt's Salve, commonly known as "Hunt's Itch Cure." Many a veteran of the late '90's will testify to its merits. If directions are followed HUNT'S SALVE will prove a never failing cure for all forms of the Itch, and your druggist will tell you so. He sells HUNT'S SALVE under a strict guarantee to refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied user.

A Medford, Oklahoma man, among thousands who praise HUNT'S SALVE, says: "I had it badly. Your Hunt's Salve, however, cured me after many other remedies had totally failed. Boys and Girls of New Jersey Town Have Made Record of Which They Are Proud.

Triumphal Arch of Titus, at Rome, and the Colosseum, Are Splendid in Their Ruin.

If there has been less talk of the sorrowful problem in Bridgeport, New Jersey, than elsewhere, it is quite explainable. Not to be outdone by their European sisters and brothers in matters of thrift and industry, 25 youngsters in that town have hoisted $181,000 in United States thrift stamps this year, thanks to their own hard work.

Boys and girls alike have welcomed opportunities of doing remunerative dishwashing, sweeping, dusting, store clerking, baby-sitting, errand-running, etc., with the goal of economy symbolized by government stamps ahead of them. The more ambitious have undertaken cutting weeds, carrying coal, sifting ashes, selling papers, raising chickens, cleaning pavements, and some have even won prizes to add to their savings.

Having found that time can be converted into money it is doubtful whether these boys will again find the street corner a worthwhile place for spending idle hours, or the girls be content to waste periods in porch chatter.

The triumphal arch of Titus in Rome was built in 70 A. D., to commemorate the defeat of the Jews, and was dedicated to the Emperor Titus after his death. It is adorned with fine sculptures in relief. On the frieze outside is a sacrificial procession and on the inner side Titus is seen crowned by Victory in a quadriga driven by Roma. On another part of the arch is a triumphal procession of Jews, the Table of Show Bread and the seven-branched candelstick. In the center of the vaulting the consecrated emperor is seen being carried to heaven by an eagle.

In 1822 the arch was a set of ruins, and some of the medieval additions were removed and it was partly reconstructed. The colosseum, with seats for 50,000 spectators, originally called the Flavian amphitheater, was completed by Titus in the year 80 A. D., and derives its later name, probably, from a colossal statue of Nero. The colosseum is now all in ruins.

Price and Percentage. Increase of price when measured in percentage is very often indirectly given. When the price doubles the increase is 100 per cent, but many people describe it as an increase of 50 per cent.

PLAYERS PAY FOR GRUB

Prior to 1882 the players were assessed 50 cents a day for board while on the road and that came pretty close to paying for the food they got. Imagine a big leaguer of today digging into his pocketbook for the cost of the meals he consumes today—about a dollar and a half for a little ham and eggs in the morning and two or three dollars for a piece of beef at the dinner session! Why, a bowl of noonday soup costs 50 cents now.

A LETTER FOR WOMEN

From a Woman Whose Serious Illness Was Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Garnett, Kas.—"I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a complete nervous breakdown following the birth of my first child. I got up too soon which caused serious female trouble. I was so weak that I was not able to be on my feet but very little and could not do my housework at all. I had a bad pain in my left side and it would pain terribly if I stepped off a curbstone. One day one of my booklets was thrown in the yard and I read every word in it. There were so many who had been helped by your medicine that I wanted to try it and my husband went to town and got me a bottle. It seemed as though I felt relief after the second dose, so I kept on until I had taken five bottles and by that time I was as well as I could wish. About a year later I gave birth to a ten pound boy, and have had two more children since and my health has been fine. If I ever have trouble of any kind I am going to take your medicine for I give it all the praise for my good health. I always recommend your medicine whenever I can."—Mrs. EVA E. MODERN TYPE OF DAIRY BARN

HAS ALL LATEST FEATURES

Is Weather Tight and Well Ventilated and Has Conveniences for Caring for Stock With Minimum of Labor.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 127 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

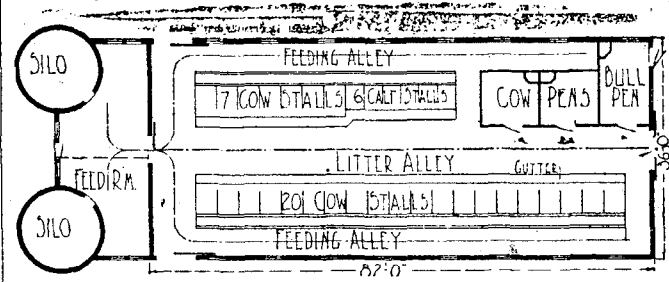

Now that the season when the dairy herd is in pasture has come it is time to consider remodeling the old barn along modern lines, or building a new one. The animals will be in the pasture lot from now until the last part of September at least, and the farm owner will have plenty of chance to get his plans made for their winter home.

As a suggestion to those who will build a barn this summer, a building of good size designed to house 27 cows and their calves is shown in the accompanying illustration. This is a modern gambrel roof barn of good exterior appearance and is intended to be constructed so that it is weather-tight and well ventilated. It is a frame structure set on a concrete foundation, the concrete wall running up to the sill of the dairy stable windows. Connected with the barn are two silos of sufficient size to house the winter supply of fresh feed for the animals the barn will accommodate.

The floor plan shows how the stalls are arranged. Through the center of the stable runs a litter alley, wide enough for a wagon to be driven through. Along each wall is a feeding alley. The floor of the stable is of concrete and back of the stalls along the litter alley is a gutter, which makes it comparatively easy to flush the refuse that is left after the litter is removed to an outlet that leads to a liquid manure tank.

Over the litter alley is a carrier hung to a track. This is indicated in the plan by a dotted line. This is one of the most valuable pieces of equipment, as it takes away the drudgery of carrying or wheeling out the refuse to the piles at the end of the barn. This carrier track also is extended over the feeding alley and is connected with the feed room. The ensilage is thrown out of the silo to the feed room and then transported by the carrier directly to the stalls.

All stall partitions in the modern dairy barn are of steel, while many different kinds of stanchions, all made in use by the owners of herds. The partitions are set into the concrete floor. Aside from their stability, steel partitions and stanchions are sanitary and, at the same time, permit the utmost freedom of movement of the animals.

It will be noted by the plan that there are continuous rows of windows in either wall of the stable, permitting the entry of plenty of fresh air and sunshine. Sunshine is a germ killer and helps to keep the stable free from disease. The fresh air supply is need-

Grandfather Could Remember How Strikingly Like Young Henry He Was as a Youth.

Henry had come home after being at college three months. And he was a very changed young man from the village youngster that had been sent away. Now that black fringe worried grandmother more than anything else.

Pastoral Epistles.

The pastoral epistles are a group in the collection of New Testament letters which in their several addresses claim to have been written by the Apostle Paul. They differ from his other writings in being specific charges concerning pastoral care of certain fields, and comprise First Timothy, Second Timothy and Titus.

ed by the cows if they are to be healthy. On top of the building are suction ventilators connected with foul air ducts, through which the foul air is drawn out of the stable.

On farms where there is a water system, fresh water is piped into the barn and directly to the stall heads. At each two stalls there is an individual drinking cup or fountain that is operated by the nose of the cow that is drinking, and is automatically shut off as soon as the animal stops. These bowls provide a continuous supply of water, throughout the 24 hours of the day and greatly increase the flow of milk.

A silo or two will be found on a great majority of the dairy farms in the corn belt, and in many other parts of the country. Filled during the summer and sealed, the silos provide fresh cut feed all during the winter, and it has been proven that fresh milk produces more milk and richer milk. Also there is a great saving in the cost of feeding the animals with ensilage over grain.

The dimensions of the barn shown in the illustration are 38 by 92 feet. Above the stable floor is the mow, which is of a size that will hold enough roughage to feed the animals during the winter.

Such a barn as this is a good investment for every farmer who makes a business of producing dairy products. The barn is arranged so that the work of caring for the animals can be done easily and at a minimum of labor cost. Every essential need of the animals is provided for in the construction of the barn. They are kept warm in winter, and are supplied with fresh air. The stable is kept clean and the animals will be healthy. And it is the healthy and comfortable cow that produces the most milk.

When planning to build a barn or rebuilding the old one so that it will be modern, it is well to consult the contractor who will build the barn and the material dealer who will furnish the materials. Both of these men know about barn construction, and many of them have a variety of barn building plans for the farmer to select from. In this way the farmer will get a barn of the right size to house his herd and their winter supply of feed, and will be able to have it arranged so that the work of caring for the animals can be done at a minimum labor cost.

There are so many reasons why a modern barn with labor-saving equipment will pay the owner that it is a wonder that farmers are not building them faster. The increase in production and the saving of labor will pay for the barn in a few years.

The Bishop's D—n.

Condemning the League of Nations deadlock, William Howard Taft said to a reporter:

"We ought to get round this deadlock. Everything can be got round, you know. Why?"

"One day," he went on, "I was playing golf at Chevy Chase with Bishop Steinhilber. The old bishop was in dreadfully bad form, and every time he made a fluke he'd mutter 'Gatun!'"

"Bishop," I said at length, "what is this word 'Gatun' that you repeat whenever anything goes wrong?"

"Gatun," he shouted, "Why that's the Gatun dam, of course—the Gatun dam of the Panama canal—8000 feet long, 2,000 feet wide, and 105 feet deep. I guess that's about the biggest dam there is, son."—Detroit Free Press.

P. O. Increases Recommended.

Washington.—Increased salaries for postal employees amounting to $33,000,000 for the first year, were recommended in a report to Congress by a congressional commission. Increases of from $150 to $250 annually for postal clerks and letter carriers with $400 for supervisory officers were recommended. No increases for postmasters were recommended. Estimates by the commission place the increase of the postal pay roll at about $38,000,000.

Root to Help Form World Court.

Washington.—Ellhu Root, who sailed from New York to attend the sessions of the organizing committee of the permanent court of international justice of the League of Nations, goes without credentials of any kind from his Government. Since the United States is not a party to the Treaty of Versailles, it can have no official representative on the commission. Some officials said Mr. Root's status as a member probably was without precedent in diplomatic history.

For State Senator

To the Electors of the Senatorial District:
Ladies and Gentlemen:

Four years ago I solicited the support of the voters of this district for the nomination for state senator on the Republican ticket. With Three candidates in the field, Mr. Duncan McRae won the nomination by a plurality of less than 250 over me, out of a total vote of around 9,000. In the election that followed and again two years ago, I gave to Mr. McRae my earnest support. In view of the fact that at the Primary of 1916 the result showed that I received the support of nearly the same number of the voters as did Mr. McRae and also of the fact that Mr. McRae has now had the customary Two terms, I have again taken this means and opportunity of soliciting the valued support of my friends of 1916 as well as all others to whom my candidacy may appeal. The platform on which I based my campaign Four years ago, was probably one of the shortest ever offered by a candidate for public office. Only Five words, "Spend less money, reduce taxes," and I come to you this year asking for your support on the same short platform and with the further statement that I am opposed to the "Riot of waste and orgy of extravagance" that now obtains in the spending of your money that you have thru taxation or otherwise, contributed to the public funds. I make no claim to possessing the gift of prophecy, and yet in view of the record of the past four years, it would be difficult to announce a platform of Five words that would sustain as vital a relation to actual facts and conditions as this one does. Had our national and state legislatures been in control of members that were real friends of economy, we would not have a record of such unparalleled waste as now exists. For the Three years of 1917, 1918 and 1919, our national government spent nearly THIRTY SEVEN BILLIONS of Dollars, a sum within about Three Billions of the entire expenditures of our government from the years 1798 to 1917, expenses for the 118 years covered by that period being around Forty Billions of Dollars. Of this vast sum spent in the Three years noted, about thirteen billions were contributed by the people in some form of taxation, about twenty-four billion was raised by sale of bonds, etc. In this brief presentation of the matter it is impossible to go into details of the way this money was wasted but a few items are as follows, $150,000,000.00 spent on port terminals at Charleston, Norfolk and other places; a single ship sailed from them during the war; $120,000,000.00 on a Nitrate plant and not a pound of Nitrate produced; $100,000,000.00 on the manufacturing of Tanks and not a tank ever reached the battle line; One billion of dollars for shells, and only 17,000 shells ever reached the army, enough for about TEN MINUTES firing under an active charge; $117,000,000.00 for gas and not a single gas shell ever reached our boys in France or any other front; $478,000,000.00 on guns and only SEVENTY-TWO guns reached our army; Probably it remained for the aeroplane fiasco to crown the fabric of waste and inefficiency with an expenditure of over a BILLION OF DOLLARS and not a single American built fighting plane in the conflict; let us quit the nauseous details and in passing it might be well to remember that one result that all this accomplished was the creating of 33,000 new millionaires in the United States from among the number that were "Patriots for Profit." The apologist for this "Carnival of Cost Plus" will say that results are what counts and that inasmuch as the war was won, the people should be satisfied and excuse all the wrong doing incident to the war the real truth is that the war was won in spite of the blundering by and plundering of, the government, it was won by that splendid army of the best of our American youth, who once they reached the battle front equipped with French and English guns and munitions, went to the task with characteristic American energy and vigor and quickly wrote "finis" to the most brutal and consciousnessless conflict the world ever witnessed. The mobilizing, training and transporting of this conquering host are the real bright spots in the whole putrid drama. The financial history of our own state government for the past few years, presents food for serious thought as to when and where the ever mounting tide of taxation will be stayed. The record of appropriations of the state legislature for the past few years is as follows: Session of 1907, $9,000,000.00; Session of 1909, $11,000,000.00; Session of 1911, $12,000,000.00; Session of 1913, $15,000,000.00; Session of 1915, $17,000,000.00; Session of 1917, $19,000,000.00; Session of 1919, $28,000,000.00 all given in round numbers. The following is the cost of the sessions above noted 1907, $165,000.00; 1909, $189,000.00; 1911, $195,000.00; 1913, $175,000.00; 1915, $192,000.00; 1917, $198,000.00; 1919, $249,000.00 in round numbers, this last shows an increase of over 200% in actual cost of a session of our legislature as compared with the session of 1907, a period of 12 years. It will be remembered that since the year 1907 the salary of members of the legislature has been the same amounting to $105,000.00 for each session, the cost of a session over that amount represents the incidental expenses of a session, and this item of incidental expense largely reflects the measure of economy shown by the members of the legislature. I will make this statement in this public way, that any session in which at least 51 members of the house and 17 members of the Senate will unite on a policy of conservative economy, the item of state tax can be held from further advance if not actually reduced, without doing injustice to any of the state's institutions or necessary activities. I may be pardoned for calling attention to the cost of session 1911 as compared with those before, following it, that session I was Chairman of the House Committee on Supplies and Expenditures and feel that I have good cause for being proud of the record made in cost of that Session. The experience in legislative work that I gained as a member of the legislature for three terms and especially that of the session of 1911 in which I was ranking member of the Committee on Ways and Means and also Speaker Pro Tem of the House will I believe enable me to render good service to this Senatorial District if I should be chosen to represent it, and on this basis of ability to render real service, I hope to have the support of the majority of the voters of the district.

Yours truly,
John M. Perry.

LOUISE GLAUM

In the days when the "villain" walked the stage in riding breeches and the she "villain" came on in a clinging red dress in pursuit of the hero, Louise Glaum, a beauty from Maryland, her home state, was regularly cast for the part of the lady in the red dress. She is popular on the "movie" screen in spectacular productions.

WOMAN'S FOLLY.

"When lovely woman stoops to folly"—
Thus sang some gink, when melancholy.
He didn't know where she spoke.
This was back-yonder writing bloke.

For half the time when women make
You think they're foolish, it's a fake.
You fall for that, and you just bet
A plenty will be what you get.

For woman is a paradox—
She is insane just like a fox.
She makes you think she "stoops to folly."
But don't you bite—it's just a jolly!

DISADVANTAGES OF IGNORANCE.
"And why didn't you try to establish an alibi?"
"I couldn't establish nothin'!
I wasn't even there when the thing was done, an' I could 'a' proved it!"

Work.

Work is anything you have to do.
It may be something you once wanted to do.

But the minute you begin to have to do it, it's your job.

If it is the other fellow's job—ah,
there's the nifty stunt!

That other fellow don't have anything to do, and he gets that much!

While you have to do all this, and you only get this much!

A clerk will holler his head off if he has to go down to the shipping department to tell somebody something and the elevator isn't right there, causing him to have to walk down a whole consecutive flight of stairs.

But let him get out on the golf links that afternoon, or on a dancing floor that night with a covey of frills, and he will travel forty-eight miles
by the pedometer and never object.

One is work because he's got to,
and the other is play because he gets to.

Lotta difference between get to and got to, isn't there?

Therein lies the essential difference between play and work.

You get to do one and you got to do the other.

While if they were reversed, the kicking would be just as strong, if not more so.

Sanity is only a comparative term.
While insanity is a positive term
(sometimes of several years) in a nut-college.

When one's kin is involved, it is a relative term.

Squabs and How to Serve Them.
First get your squab. The raising of squabs has become quite a successful enterprise and they are not an annoyance to the neighbors when kept within their own domain. Squabs are a choice morsel, boned, stuffed and baked or broiled.

Game of any kind, so say those who are authority, should not be washed in water unless the gall bladder has been broken. Sprinkle the inside of the dressed bird with plenty of black pepper and let it hang in a cool current of air until needed. Then wipe thoroughly with a dampened cloth wrung from cold water. The custom of keeping game for several days after killing makes it tender and develops a flavor well liked by the epicure. Whitemeated game of all kinds should be cooked well done, the dark-meated kinds are better served rare.

A squab should be plump and pink,
although there are those of a dark color (this variety does not bring so good a price). Squabs are in season all the year.

Squabs should be drawn as soon as killed, the heads and feet removed if to be served at once. If the squabs are to be broiled, split down the back, wipe well, brush with melted butter or olive oil and broil over or under a good fire, searing quickly to retain all the juices, lowering the heat as the meat becomes brown. Have cooking as many slices of bacon as there are squabs and serve each with a piece of bacon.

A Michigan Central locomotive struck an auto that was being driven by Johannes Jorgenson Sunday afternoon smashing the rear wheels and badly damaging the fenders. It is reported that the driver had been given the right of way by the crossing watchman and just at that time the freight locomotive arrived from the north and failed to ring the bell and also to blow the whistle. A freight car standing on the siding obscured the incoming freight and neither the watchman nor the occupants of the car were aware of its approach. No injury was done to the occupants of the car.

Albert Molbeck, a former resident of Grayling arrived in the city Tuesday to call on many of his old school mates here. He left Grayling in 1892 for Portland, Maine, where he now resides, but when he came to Grayling he came from Tyler, Minnesota, where he had been in attendance at the convention of the Danish churches of America. When he lived in Grayling he attended the Grayling schools with James and George Sorenson now the firm of Sorenson Bros., and Mr. Benkleman was Superintendent of schools at that time. No doubt Mr. Molbeck will renew many happy acquaintances while here. He is a nephew of Andrew Mortenson of Beaver Creek township at whose home he has been spending part of his time.

In a Ford auto, which belonged to Carl Larson were Mr. Larson, Mrs. Ethel Davis and the latter's brother, Herbert Liphard, who was driving the machine. The accident occurred when they came down the School Section lake road and Liphard was going at a high rate of speed, passing two other machines. As he came to State street, he endeavored to turn the corner which has a sharp turn when he lost control of the machine and it skidded turning over twice before it landed. Mrs. Davis was thrown out of the machine when it first turned, but it caught her again on the second turn pinning her beneath it. Both Mr. Larson and Mr. Liphard were thrown out of the machine. No one was seriously injured, although they suffered some bad cuts and bruises. Mrs. Davis, receiving the most severe injuries and Liphard had an arm sprained near the wrist. The cause of the accident was without a doubt reckless driving, and it was miraculous that the occupants were not more seriously injured. Liphard and Larson were taken to Mercy hospital and their wounds dressed while Mrs. Davis was taken to the home of her parents.

SENATE TURNS DOWN MANDATE

RESOLUTION BANNING WILSON'S ARMENIA REQUEST SENT TO HOUSE.

PLAN TO DELAY IS BLOCKED

Vote On Question Is Overwhelming With Democrats Standing By Republicans.

Washington.—President Wilson's plea for an American mandate over Armenia was rejected in the senate by a vote of more than two to one. Thirteen Democrats cast their votes with the united Republican membership on the final roll call, and the resolution "respectfully declining" to grant congressional authority for the mandate was adopted 52 to 23 in the form drafted by the Republican leaders.

The resolution was sent to the house and the leaders there planned to adopt it without change. They said they hoped for as decisive a majority as the measure was given in the senate.

In the debate the Democratic leaders counselled delay, and tried to put the decision over until the next session of congress. Scarcely a vote was raised in and out advocacy of accepting the mandate, and on motion to amend the resolution so that the requested authority would be given, only 12 senators, all of them Democrats, voted in the affirmative. Recorded against the motion were 23 Democrats and 39 Republicans.

In their effort to ward off action, which they argued was advisable because of the peace deadlock, the minority leaders had better success. A motion to send the resolution back to committee with instructions that it be reported "after ratification of a peace treaty with the central powers," mustered almost solid Democratic support, but was lost, 43 to 34.

COLOMBIA PACT PASSAGE ASKED

Sub-Committee of Senate Recommends Approval Without Change.

Washington.—Recommendations that the long pending treaty with Colombia growing out of the partitioning of Panama be reported back to the senate for final action were made to the foreign relations committee by the sub-committee appointed to draft an amendment designed to protect American oil and mining interests from the operation of a presidential decree, regarded by some senators as confiscatory.

The sub-committee, said an amendment was unnecessary because the supreme court of Colombia had declared invalid not only the presidential decree, but legislation along similar lines which had been presented in the Colombian congress. It called attention to that decree was similar to that issued in Mexico, against which the United States has protested, but expressed full confidence that the people and government of Colombia were sincere in their expressions of desire to protect American rights and interests within the republic.

The document provides for the payment of $25,000,000 to Colombia by the United States and when it was taken up in the senate last summer, it was understood that Colombia had agreed to the changes. The sub-committee in its report, said, however, that the records of the state department did not show that Colombia had given its approval.

HOUSE CRIMPS WAR-TIME POWER

Votes to Kill Emergency Acts With Two Exceptions.

Washington.—By a vote of 323 to 3 the house adopted and sent to the senate a resolution repealing all war-time laws except the Lever food control act and the trading-with-the-enemy act.

Though supporting the resolution, Democrats protested against continuing in force the Lever act and expressed doubt whether the repeal bill as drafted covered all war legislation, particularly the espionage act. On the roll call, however, only three Democrats opposed the resolution. Representative Walsh, Republican, Massachusetts, in charge of the repeal resolution, replying to the expressed doubts of the Democrats, said all war laws, excepting the two specifically mentioned by the resolution and the liberty and victory loan acts, would be repealed by the measure. Continuance of the Lever act, Mr. Walsh declared, was necessary so the government would have a law to punish profiteering in food, clothing and other necessities.

Army Bill Cut in Conference.

Washington.—The army reorganization bill emerged from conference shorn of senate proposals for federalization of the national guard, for a voluntary universal training system and for automatic revival of the war-time selective service act on declaration of a war emergency. The bill provides for a peace-time regular army of 297,000 officers and men, including the Philippine scouts; for continuation of the national guard substantially on the present basis.

Maintain War Standards For Wheat.

Washington.—Continuation of present federal wheat standards has been decided upon by Secretary Meredith. Lowering present standards, the secretary announced, would tend to decrease the return to farmers. Advocates of the change argued the producer would receive more for his wheat. Federal standards have been operative only under fixed price and war conditions. Opportunity for fair tests of their merits or defects has not been afforded normally.

JUVINY DOES HONOR TO DEAD WARRIORS OF 32ND DIVISION

Paris.—Juvinvy, where some 420 American soldiers of the Thirty-second division sleep on a wild-sweet hillside overlooking the little village, was fragrant with flowers and alive with flags on Memorial day. Here lie the men from Michigan and Wisconsin of the 126th, the 128th and 127th regiments, National Guard.

Children with their arms full of bright field flowers, picked just where the buttercups and daisies crowded up close to the rows of white wooden crosses, marched between the even mounds and laid their tributes on the graves. "It was a fitting and happy thought. These are the very fields over which the boys from Saginaw and La Crosse and French-settled Detroit fought so desperately, dying as they clutched at the roots of the sweet field flowers which then—as now—make vivid spots of beauty in the rank grass."

MOVE CARS OUT OR PAY FINES

I. C. C. Says Roads Trifle With Demand To Relieve Congestion.

Washington.—Warning that the penal provisions of the interstate commerce act would be invoked unless the railroads comply with orders designed to relieve freight congestion was issued by the interstate commerce commission.

The commission in a letter to the chairman of the Association of Railway Executives' Car Service committee, said inspectors' reports had shown deliveries of equipment as ordered by the commission were not being made. The matter will be investigated, the commission added.

The telegram said: "The commission desires to state that the present emergency which led the commission to issue its service orders numbers 1, 2 and 3 (relative to interchange of freight cars; to abrogation of inter-road contracts and contracts with shippers as to freight routings; and to deviation of freight from regular routes), is of such grave character that full and prompt compliance with the orders in detail must be expected. "In candor, the commission feels it should so state to executives or carriers who are represented by the committee of which you are chairman, that prompt, full and literal compliance with these service orders is expected and that violations thereof would be made the subject of inquiry by the commission with the view to institution of proceedings for the enforcement of the penal provisions of the interstate commerce act governing violations of orders of the commission in such cases."

HOPE TO AVERT STATE TIUUP

Railway Officials Say Cars Will Continue To Operate.

Jackson.—Belief was expressed by officials of the Michigan Railway here that there would be no interruption in interurban service between southern Michigan cities, nor in city service in Kalamazoo, Jackson, Battle Creek and Lansing. They based their claims on an agreement with the car men to keep the cars in operation, pending completion of negotiations for fare increases necessary to put in effect wage increases conceded the carmen recently by a board of arbitration.

Progress in these negotiations was reported, the Jackson city commission having voted to allow seven and one-half cent fares, on the basis of four tickets for 30 cents, with a 10-cent cash fare for adults and 5 cents for children. Similar concessions, effective for the rest of this year, but subject to consideration at the August primary, already had been voted in Kalamazoo.

It is declared the Battle Creek city commission will submit to the state public utilities commission at Lansing, the question of fares in that city.

DELTA ARRESTS U.S. RUM AGENT

New Clash of Authority Seen in War On Whiskey.

Escanaba.—Escanaba authorities awaited word from Chicago regarding the course to be taken by Major A. V. Dalrymple, of Iron River "rumbler" fame, in connection with the arrest here of J. F. Fillion, federal prohibition enforcing officer, charged with assault and battery, carrying concealed weapons and another count. The arrest was the sequel of a spectacular seizure by Fillion of 185 gallons of whiskey in two automobiles, bound for Escanaba from Vulcan, a small iron mining town nearby, after a display of firearms and the erecting of a log barricade across the road. Fillion was released on $200 bonds, furnished by a local newspaper editor.

Held Culpable in Profit Orgy.

Washington.—Attorney General Palmer was called upon to resign by Representative Tinkham, of Massachusetts, as the result of the report of the congressional committee, which investigated the attorney general's handling of the sugar situation. Tinkham declared that since the report declared that Palmer had violated the Lever act in fixing the price of Louisiana sugar, and had made profiteering possible, that "his continuance in office is no longer possible."

Block Collective Marketing Measure.

Washington.—Opponents of the bill permitting farmers, planters, ranchmen, dairymen or fruit growers to combine for collective marketing and sale of their products blocked passage of the measure by the house, but supporters announced they would force the legislation through the house before the convention recess. "This bill has all the earmarks of the propaganda of a league that fosters idealism to this government," declared Representative Walsh, Massachusetts.

River Sinister Element in Chicago.

Chicago.—Belief that the Chicago river, which runs through the heart of Chicago, lately, has become a sinister element in crime, was expressed by the county coroner. Glenview, Ill.—After getting their bills full of an alcoholic sediment which had collected at the bottom of the silo on the Belts farm near here, two ducks attacked all the other fowls on the farm, chased a number of Glenview residents and bit a policeman on the shins. Then, staggering back to the farm, they crawled under a stove and died of duck delirium tremens. Their gizzards have been sent to a chemist for examination.

Dry Wave Ruins Bums' Paradise.

Spiking Speeders Is Latest Trick.

Athens, Greece.—Police men here have an effective and unique method of curbing speeding motorists. They carry planks studded with long sharp nails, and when they see a car approaching at a rate they believe is excessive, they drop the plank in front of the machine. If the car is speeding, it cannot be stopped in time, and as a result its tires are punctured, but if the machine is proceeding at a reasonable pace it can be stopped before the plank is reached.

CONGRESS TAKES RECESS TILL DEC. 6

WARTIME LAW REPEAL AND WATER POWER BILL VETOED BY PRESIDENT.

BUDGET BILL FAILS TO PASS

Merchant Marine and Immigration Bills Signed—Postal Pay Raise Also Becomes Law.

Washington.—Eleven bills and resolutions passed by congress in the closing days of its session, including the water power measure and the joint resolution repealing most of the wartime laws and proclamations were killed by President Wilson through a "pocket veto." Fifty-eight measures, including the merchant marine bill and that providing for the exclusion and expulsion of aliens from the United States who are members of an anarcho-socialist organizations, were approved. The bill to create a national budget system failed of action in the senate and automatically died when congress adjourned, not to meet again until December 6, unless some grave emergency arises which makes a special session necessary.

Among other bills which received the "pocket veto" was that authorizing the detailing of naval officers as instructors in the navies of South American republics and a resolution authorizing appointment of a commission to confer with the Canadian government with regard to the restrictions on pulp wood coming into the United States. Most of the other measures were minor ones.

The postal pay increase bill, under which postoffice employees will receive $33,000,000 additional salary next year and more thereafter, and the merchant marine bill were signed by the president.

CAR AND AUTO MEET, 5 KILLED

Machine Struck With Terrific Force, Carried 250 Feet.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Five persons, a man, woman and three children, were killed when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Michigan railway interurban car at the crossing one mile south of Jensen Sunday.

Witnesses declare that although the interurban car blew its whistle as it approached the crossing, the automobile sped on, the driver apparently unaware of the danger. The automobile was struck squarely, and was rolled over and over ahead of the car. The occupants of the machine were hurled out as it was thrown ahead of the car. Each victim was badly mangled. Mrs. John Winter, only eye witness of the accident, declared that the driver of the car was a 16 year old boy. The auto was struck with terrific force, and carried more than 250 feet.

NEW YORK CENSUS COMPLETED

Figures Announced Show Population of 5,621,151.

Washington.—New York City had a population of 5,621,151 on January 2, an increase of $54,268, or 17.9 per cent over 1910, according to figures announced by the census bureau. The rate of growth was smaller than ever before in the city's history, except in the decade ending in 1870, while the increase numerically was smaller than either of the two decades preceding 1910.

The latest estimate of the population of the city of London, made in 1917, was 4,026,901, a decrease from the official census of 1911, which showed a population of 4,521,685.

Comparison of the population of New York city with that of London is difficult because of the areas covered by the various designations of the cities. New York city proper covers 287 square miles, while for census purposes the city and county of London cover 118 square miles.

BRITAIN NOW CONTROLS BALTIC

Acquire Naval Base At Reval—Gives Them Whip Hand Over Russia.

Paris.—The British have established a naval base in Reval, through a purchase the Forthington interests have acquired control of the Russo-Baltic and Boecker shipping.

Colonel Woods, of the British political mission in Lithuania, has admitted that yards had been acquired for this purpose.

This confirms dispatches from Viborg predicting their control of the Finnish gulf. It gives the British control of both water entrances to European Russia.

House Gets Bill to Kill War Acts.

Washington.—By unanimous vote, the house judiciary committee ordered out a resolution repealing all war-time emergency legislation excepting the Lever food control act, the trading with the enemy act and the District of Columbia rent profiteering measure. The war-time prohibition act also would be repealed by the resolution. Wets on the judiciary committee insisted on having this act included in the list in the hope that the way to the sale of liquor would be reopened.

Bill to Bar Radical Aliens Favored.

Washington.—After making slight modifications in the house bill broadening the powers of the government to deport alien anarchists and to prevent their admission into the country, the senate immigration committee ordered the measure favorably reported. As amended the bill would bar alien anarchists "who advise, advocate or preach opposition to all organized governments," or "who are members of organizations which advise, create or preach opposition to government."

Home Town Helps

TREES SERVE TWO PURPOSES

Give Beauty to Town and Will Be Source of Revenue to Future Generations.

The women's clubs of the country have organized a state-wide tree planting. In California each district of the federated clubs has been supplied with tree-planting data from the association. In Georgia the tree planting was done in the winter by the Georgia federation, when thirty-one memorial groves were planted under the direction of Julia Lester Dillon. In Delaware the federation is co-operating with the great road-building program there in order to have the highways of the state become one big "road of remembrance." "This is one of the biggest programs before any state," says Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Forestry association. "Every state should watch what General du Pont and the state of Delaware does. Samuel C. Lancaster, the highway engineer who built the Columbia river highway, has submitted a comprehensive plan to General du Pont. This includes tree planting on an intelligent scale.

"The greatest educational campaign the country ever saw is being worked out through the schools of the country. The coming generation will know the value of forestry to the country in which it lives. Our forests are like a bank. We must deposit in them if we hope to draw out. Through the planting of trees and the study of outdoor life the children will easily take up the economic side of the subject and understand what must be done toward saving our forests."

MAKE WAR ON TREE PESTS

Method by Which School Children May Be of Great Service to the Community.

Public school children of Trenton, N. J., are setting a good example to the country in their war on the tussock moth. The American Forestry association at Washington wants to receive reports on what other cities are doing in this regard and would like to find the city with the best record in collections. In the Trenton Times this account is found:

"Boys and girls of the public schools of the city are still continuing their activities in the tussock moth campaign, and their last report shows that during the month the boys and girls have collected 1,284,800 cocoons. Last year the pupils collected 2,000,000 during the entire campaign, and their total this year will far exceed that."

"Nothing doing," he sneered. "Any crook daring enough to steal those pearls, once he had got his hands on them, never would return them. Pearls are too easily disposed of. You've got to dig up a better explanation than that."

"What did Mr. Gaston think? What did he say when he found them there?"

"He had nothing to say. He was so tickled at finding them again that he hustled with them right away to the safe deposit vaults and did not rest until he had them safely locked up. He took both jewel cases with him and made me go along with him to protect them."

"Didn't you look at all for the secret passageway I told you about?"

"Still dreaming about that, are you?" scoffed Gorman. "No, we didn't. On the way up to the Grandclock the old man spoke about it and I told him that in my opinion there was nothing to it. After he recovered the pearls he was too excited to think about anything else. It seemed to break him all up, and I took him back to his hotel and left him there. He said he had some writing to do, and that he would meet me at my office at noon today."

"How do you account for the return of the pearls?" I asked eagerly.

"I haven't any," he replied. "It's up to you to explain it. Maybe by the time I come to see you tomorrow you'll have thought up a new yarn to spin."

"Please, please," I begged for him as he turned away. "Do look tomorrow and see if that secret passage is not where I said it was."

He walked away without answering. Back once more in my cell, I stretched myself despondently on my little iron cot, and closing my eyes, tried to concentrate my thoughts on an attempt to solve this new mystery, which I could plainly see had all but destroyed Gorman's faith in my honesty. I must solve it if I was to retain him in aiding me to get free, yet the whole thing seemed inexplicable. I could hardly blame him for doubting me. The great value of the pearls had been motive enough for their theft, but what possible motive could there have been for the thief returning them?

With a shock it came to me, too, that the restoration of the pearls practically upset the whole theory of my defense. If I could have established the fact of this theft, a jury might be persuaded to believe my tale of anonymous notes, mysterious whispers, and a secret passageway by which the thief had gained access to the apartment, but without the motive of theft, my story, unsupported by witnesses and uncorroborated by other evidence, surely would be incredible of belief.

I had just one hope left. Old Rufus must find that secret passageway and see whether it led. That, with our knowledge of the identity of the telephone girl and the possibility of proving Gorman's belief that Wick was an ex-convict, seemed likely to be my only salvation. Old Rufus must find that passageway. He must! He must!

For hours I lay there racking my brains over the unsolvable problems. My luncheon was brought in, but I waved it away untouched. Wearily I wondered whether the recovery of the pearls had destroyed my old relative's faith in me, as it seemed to have destroyed Gorman's. I could hardly blame him if he doubted me after finding that my story of the disappearance of the pearls was apparently untrue. In my brief experience as a prisoner I had learned all too well the bitter fact that once a man is discredited, henceforth, no one trusts him. If Rufus Gasto, failed me at this juncture, I did not see how I could possibly extricate myself unscathed from the web that unseen hands had so skillfully and maliciously woven around me. The only ray of comfort that I could find anywhere in the whole situation was in my firm belief that though old Rufus and Gorman and the whole world doubted me, Barbara Bradford—my Barbara, I ventured to call her in my innermost heart—would continue to believe in me. She would be sure, no matter how much appearances went against me, that I was telling the truth. Barbara and I knew. Even if she had not known that I could not possibly have fired the shot that killed Miss Lutan, I was certain that she still would have trusted me.

Thinking about Barbara I recalled that it was the day of her sister's wedding. I had one of the prison attendants get me the evening papers to see what they had to say about it. For I was fearful lest some breath of scandal at the last moment involving the Bradfords might bring about a postponement. Eagerly I was hoping that nothing had happened to prevent the marriage taking place. With the fortunes of her sister assured and her mother's future safe, I realized that the course of my relations with Barbara would be likely to be much smoother sailing, provided of course that I was acquitted. In the few chains I had had with her, I had realized that wealth and luxury and social position meant nothing to Barbara's happiness. She was the sort of girl who for a man she loved gladly would brave poverty, hardship, everything—a sincere, true-hearted woman with a clear vision of the real values of existence.

My messenger returned with the newspapers, and as I picked them up, everything went black. "Millionaire Gaston Found Murdered," was the startling headline that flashed before me, right there in the column next to the account of the Bradford wedding.

The sinister effect of this terrible news dawned on me instantly. With my great-uncle Rufus dead, without the possibility of his corroborating any part of my story, my case was hopeless, desperate. Unquestionably it would mean that I would be found guilty of murder and sentenced to death in the electric chair. As soon as I could sufficiently compose myself I read every word there was in the newspapers about this new tragedy, smiling grimly at the thought that at least they could not blame this murder on me.

Mr. Gaston, it appeared, had come to the Grandclock about ten o'clock in the morning and had gone at once to his apartment. On his arrival he had been greeted by the telephone girl and had informed her that he was only in the city for a few days and was staying at a hotel. He had added that he would not be occupying the apartment for several weeks until his wife's return to the city. About half-past twelve there had come a telephone call for him. The girl had been unable to get any response from the apartment. Knowing that he had not come out, and fearing that he might have had a sudden attack of illness, she had become alarmed and notified Mr. Wick, the superintendent.

The superintendent, the account continued, had summoned Mr. Henry Kent, the owner of the Grandclock apartments. Together they had gone to Mr. Gaston's room. Being unable to get any reply to repeated rings and knocks they had finally let themselves in with a pass key in possession of the owner of the building.

In his study in the rear of the apartment they were horrified to find old Rufus Gaston, fully clad, lying on the floor, face down, stone dead. A great wound on the back of his head showed that he had been killed, probably instantly, by a terrific blow from some sort of a blunt instrument. A search of the rooms failed to show any sort of a weapon.

The police theory was that the crime was undoubtedly the work of a burglar who had been trapped by the return of Mr. Gaston so unexpectedly to his apartment. How the murderer escaped after attacking Mr. Gaston was a puzzle to the detectives at work on the case. The superintendent of the building expressed the opinion that the murderer had gained access in the guise of a meter inspector. Attendants in the hall recalled that there had been such a man in the building that morning. As he wore the usual uniform and presented the customary credentials, he had been permitted to enter and leave the building unmolested.

There followed a long review of Rufus Gaston's business career and an estimate of some of his extensive holdings in stocks, bonds and real estate, from which it appeared that his fortune was likely to run to over ten million dollars. It was with some surprise that I learned that a score or more of years ago the old man apparently had been a powerful figure in the life of the metropolis, active both in its business and social life.

What interested me most was the attention paid to the remarkable coincidence that only a few weeks before a murder had taken place in the apartment just below, under practically the same circumstances. The police, the account stated, were inclined to believe that the murderer was one of the gang to which young Nelson, now in prison charged with the murder of Miss Lutan, undoubtedly belonged. Their theory was that a burglar gang succeeded in planting Nelson in the apartment as a caretaker, and that this enabled them to get their bearings in the building and provide themselves with false keys for ransacking the rooms at their leisure. The guilt of young Nelson, the police say, is established beyond question, and they are hopeful of being able to round up his associates.

There was also a brief interview with Wick, in which he was quoted as saying: "I was suspicious of Nelson from the start and tried to keep an eye on him. He was very secretive about his comings and goings and was always prying about trying to learn something about the other tenants. How Mr. Gaston came to employ him as a caretaker I never learned, but it would be no hard matter for a slick young crook like him to impose on so old a man as Mr. Gaston with a cock and bull story."

I knew that Wick was deliberately trying to still further discredit me. I recalled that he himself had told me that Mr. Gaston had mentioned our relationship. It was obvious that he was deliberately withholding this information with a sinister purpose.

That Wick knew well who had killed Rufus Gaston, just as he knew who had shot Daisy Lutan, I was morally certain. I was inclined to agree with Gorman that Wick himself was not the murderer. The fact that he was of a cowardly and cringing nature seemed to argue against associating him actively with crimes of violence. Yet the virulent way in which he was adding to the evidence against me showed plainly that he was industriously engaged in masking the real murderer.

Who could the murderer be? I was confident that the same person who had killed Miss Lutan had killed my great-uncle. I could only conjecture as to the motive. The police theory that it was burglary seemed as logical as any. The more I pondered over the matter the more firmly I became convinced that there was a numerous criminal band at the back of it all. No one man or two men could carry out all the deviltry, even with the help of the telephone girl.

I recalled, too, how I had been skillfully shadowed, work that evidently required organization and employees. I was convinced that Wick and the telephone girl were only two—more than likely two minor members—of a powerful body of criminals. That it was this same sinister force that had caused my discharge from the office I was equally sure. "This sort of thing took brains far bigger brains than Wick gave any evidence of possessing."

A peculiar apathy came over me as I finished reading the account. Never before had I so fully understood how thoroughly an innocent man could be damned by circumstantial evidence. I knew—Barbara knows—that I was absolutely innocent. I doubted much if we could get anyone else to believe it. The cunning web had been woven with such malicious thoroughness that escape seemed impossible. What was the use of my fighting further?

CHAPTER XIII.

Coming as it did as a dire climax to all my other troubles, the shock of old Rufus Gaston's murder sent me into an apathetic state from which it seemed impossible for me to arouse myself. Without hope and even without interest I daily awaited the approach of my trial for murder.

While there never had been an opportunity for any bond of affection to become established between my aged relative and myself—in fact, I had seen him only three or four times in my whole life, and then only for brief periods—still his unexpected and dreadful end had bereft me of practically every hope of being acquitted of the absurd charge against me. Wick, it was plain, intended to disclaim all knowledge of my relationship to Mr. Gaston, and now there was no one else to explain how I happened to be living in the building at the time of Miss Lutan's murder. Unfortunately I had destroyed both Mr. Gaston's letter to me and the note from my mother which had first told me of the old man's intention. My great-aunt, I learned from the newspapers, had been completely prostrated by the tragedy and had been unable to come to the funeral. The shock of the news of her husband's violent end had left her in a very critical condition. It seemed to have wholly deranged her aged brain, and the physicians summoned to the Maine camp where she was refused to permit her to be removed from there or to let anyone talk with her, declaring that the least excitement of any sort would be apt to have fatal results.

To be sure there was my mother, who could prove my relationship, but I felt there was little use of dragging her into it. On reading of her uncle's death she had hastened on from the West to attend his funeral and had been puzzled and alarmed by not finding me there. All the time I had been in prison I had been writing her my usual weekly letter, affecting a cheerfulness I was far from feeling and telling her nothing of what had happened. Her letters to me, addressed to the Grandclock, had been forwarded by the post office, so that until after she arrived in the city she knew nothing of my plight. It had been my hope that I would be able to conceal everything from her until after I had been triumphantly acquitted. If I were not she would know the worst soon enough.

When she first learned, or from what source, of my predicament I was unsure. I did not even know of her presence in the city until the day after my great-uncle's funeral, when—just twenty-four hours before my trial was to begin—a keeper brought me word that she was waiting downstairs to see me.

I steeled myself for the interview with her. Naturally I expected that she would be terribly horror-stricken and shocked at my plight, but what her attitude toward me would be I could not conjecture. I fully expected nothing but reproaches from her. She had been so opposed to my coming to New York that I felt certain that she would insist that my conduct must be responsible for my being where I now was. For years, it seemed to me, the relations between my mother and myself had been nothing but continuous misunderstandings. To my great amusement and bewilderment an unkind word or the suggestion of a reproachful thought came from her lips.

as she saw me, "I know you didn't do it. I know my boy is innocent! What can I do to help you?"

In that glorious, wonderful moment of reaction all resentment I had felt toward her forever vanished. I had one sacred, unforgettable glimpse of the eternal greatness of the Mother-heart, ever ready to forgive, ever quick to comprehend, ever prompt to aid. For one sweet hour we talked together, more understandingly than ever before in our lives. Freely and fully I told her everything, even to my wonderful but hopeless love for Barbara Bradford. She was willing, anxious, eager to aid me—but what was there that she could do?—what was there that anyone could do?

It was hopeless for a lone woman of limited means, unacquainted with the big city and unused to its ways, to attempt to battle against such powerful and desperate criminals as were concerned in the far-reaching plot to make me the scapegoat of their heinous misdeeds. I could only advise her that she see McGregor and Gorman and be guided by what they suggested.

When the morning of my trial actually arrived I entered the courtroom in a state of dull apathy. The night before I had not slept at all. I had spent

"Oh, My Boy, My Boy!" She Had Cried as She Saw Me, "I Know You Didn't Do It!"

all the black hours reviewing my life, especially the last year, thinking with what high hopes and great expectations I had come to the metropolis and how miserably everything had turned out for me. Step by step I had reviewed the events that had brought me, discredited, all but friendless, all but penniless, into this dismal courtroom accused of a horrible, cowardly deed, seeking to see wherein I might have altered my recent actions or changed the course of my life to avoid having arrived at this shameful goal. Yet, strange to say, I found myself after mature reflection convinced that had I this last year to live over again not in one iota would I have done differently—no, not even if I could have foretold what the future had in store for me.

TAKE HIGH OFFICE MARCH 4

That Day Officially Set for Inauguration of the President of the United States.

President Washington was inaugurated for his second term, beginning March 4, 1793, and all the other presidents, except four, who were inaugurated March 5, because the 4th fell on Sunday.

The four exceptions were Presidents Monroe, second term, 1821; Taylor, 1849; Hayes, 1877; and President Wilson's second term, 1917. President Hayes took the oath March 3, 1877, and was formally inaugurated on the following Monday. President Wilson took the oath for his second term on Sunday, March 4. The usual inauguration parade took place the next day.

The question as to whether, in the event of March 4 falling on Sunday at the beginning of a term, there being an interregnum of one full day in the office, was first brought by John Quincy Adams when he was secretary of state. He applied for a dictum of the Supreme court to guide the manner of inaugurating President Monroe for his second term. The opinion of Chief Justice Marshall does not prohibit the president from taking the oath and entering his duties immediately after midnight of March 3, even if March 4 falls on Sunday.

Still Make Use of Blowgun.

The blowgun is still popular for hunting birds among the Kosi Indians in Louisiana. This weapon consists of a tube, usually of cane, about six feet long, rubbed smooth on the inside with an implement made for the purpose and carefully straightened with the aid of fire. Slender, pointed darts about eight inches long are used as ammunition, each one wrapped neatly along a third of its length with thistle-down or cotton to make it fit the inside of the tube. The hunter places a dart in the tube, which he raises to his lips and with which he takes careful aim at his game; then with a quick puff of breath he drives the little dart flying with a sufficient force to impale and kill a small bird or squirrel.

"Tempus Fugit"

The teacher gave Margaret some yarn and cardboard, and after showing her how to work a design, told her to finish it at home. When she came to school the next day with the half-finished work, the teacher asked her why she had not finished it; if she had run out of yarn. "Oh, no," answered Margaret; "I just run out of time."

The instrument automatically indicates various changes in weather conditions at any altitude. It is lifted into the air by a large box kite secured to earth by a piano wire. The wire is fed from a steel drum containing eight or ten miles of wire. Frequently at the six box-kite stations maintained by the bureau as many as ten kites are operated on one line. One outfit broke away from the Georgia station and helplessly entangled a mile in a cottonfield. After three men had released the mile the meteorograph was found unharmed.

Exercise Ingenuity.

"Grow younger as you grow older by cultivating a love of good, healthful, honest sport," is sound advice. Walking, riding, rowing, playing golf, tennis or croquet or any other mild form of exercise in the open air keeps the muscles supple and prevents the joints from stiffening, fills the lungs with life-giving oxygen and keeps the blood from becoming sluggish or the liver torpid. In short, it is exercise and right thinking that keep the body "in tune and up to concert pitch."—Orison Swett Marden in Chicago Daily News.

BROTHER WIND AND THE DICTIONARY MAN.

LITTLE-GIRL-WHO-LIVES-IN THE-LOW-WHITE-HOUSE, and the Boy-on-the-Other-Side-of-the-Fence, and the Little Green Elf man met in the very center of the old garden.

Little-Girl had skipped out on the porch and down the steps. She had hopped, one-two-three, down the little path that led to the world on the other side of the fence. Little-Girl hopped because she was so happy.

The sun shone and the white clouds raced one another across the blue sky. The tall sunflowers turned laughing faces to the sun. They were indeed tall sunflowers—almost as tall as the sunflowers in the garden of the little U. S. School Garden Army soldier in Richmond, Va.—the sunflowers that won a prize. And the chickens—who like sunflower seed quite as well as children like nourishing oatmeal—looked longingly at the big flowers as they swung in the breeze.

Brisk friendly Brother Wind swept through the garden paths and across the flower beds and dared anyone to have a race with him. He was in a gypsy mood for he lifted Little-Girl's white apron and whirled it across her eyes, coaxing her to play Blind Man's Buff with him. He whisked her short yellow curls about her face until she looked like a little Eskimo girl in a short curly fur cap. Yes, indeed, Brother Wind was out for a lark. But no one had time to play with him except the leaves, and they led him a mad race. They rose and fell, and floated out of his reach and hid in fence corners until he lost patience and blew some of them over the wall, and off across the meadow.

Brother Wind did not like to be "it" all of the time. It is pleasant to have a turn, as children must learn or be counted selfish, and surely no School Garden Army soldier wishes to be selfish.

So Brother Wind decided to take some seeds for play-fellows. Borne on the wings of Brother Wind seeds of flowers and vegetables began a strange journey that was to take them far across meadows and fields and gardens and land them in a new home in the soft warm earth many miles away. Brother Wind and the birds often take seeds on long journeys and find new homes for them, as all children of the United States School Garden Army know. Children travel in railroad trains and automobiles, but the seeds travel by wind and bird.

Now that Little-Girl had escaped the clutches of Brother Wind, she soon found herself safe and snug right in front of the little brown gate with the yellow slats that divided the garden of Mumsy Dear and Daddy Dear from the vegetable garden of big-Boy's mother. Big-Boy called his mother "Mater." Big-Boy's brother, who was at college, said that "Mater" is the way to say mother in Latin. So, you see, we are always learning something new.

Little-Girl stood in front of the gate and called the magic words "He-he-he-he-o!" She did not have very long to wait for Brother Wind had flown down the path of Big-Boy's garden, and soon he came racing back with Big-Boy's answer, which, was—you never can guess—yes, it was—"He-he-he-he-o!" The answer meant that Big-Boy was coming out into the Land-of-Make-Believe, which in the garden world is also the Land-of-Really-True. The Magic call brought another person into the garden—the Little Green Elf Man who came hopping out of the Land-of-Make-Believe where he had a nice warm bed in some sweet smelling grasses.

The Little Elf Man knew all about the "happy life of green things growing." Perhaps, when you are older you will read the poem by Dinah Mar-

La Mulock. Oh, the fluttering and the pattering of those green things growing; How they talk each to each, when none of us are knowing; In the wonderful white of the weird moonlight, Or the dim, dreamy dawn when the cocks are crowing.

Well, the Little Green Elf man had heard them talking, and he told Little-Girl and Big-Boy some of their secrets.

By the time Little-Girl and Big-Boy were seated on the garden bench with the Little Green Elf man beside them along came someone else. He was a chunky, square little person with thin legs and arms and a student's cap on his head. He came out of the library window, and down the path, and seated himself beside the children.

So there they were—Little-Girl, Big-Boy, Green Elf and the Dictionary Man! Yes, sir it was the Dictionary Man! By Cecilia Reynolds Robertson.

FARMERS VISIT N. E. MICHIGAN IN AUGUST.

The Michigan Farmer is arranging for an automobile excursion of southern Michigan farmers into northeastern Michigan in August. The excursionists will camp out on their trip, arrangements for camping facilities being made by the Michigan farmer. The excursion will give those who make it an excellent opportunity to learn what northeastern Michigan offers the farmers, and after the party reaches Bay City it will be in charge of officials of the development bureau. A similar excursion is to go up the west side of the state, both parties meeting for a big field day at Mackinac. The excursionists will disperse at Mackinac, each returning over any route he may choose. It is expected that scores of farmers and their families will make the trip.

PERIODIC BILIOUS ATTACKS.

Persons subject to bilious attacks at regular intervals know about when to expect an attack. They find that they have no desire for food when an attack is due but usually eat because it is meal time. Skip one meal and take three of Chamberlain's Tablets and you may be able to avoid the attack. Persons subject to periodic bilious attacks should not drink tea or coffee at any time. Adv.

R. F. ERWIN REGARDING HIS TROUBLES.

"A year ago last winter I had an attack of indigestion followed by biliousness and constipation. Seeing Chamberlain's Tablets so highly recommended for stomach troubles I bought a bottle of them and they helped me right away" writes R. F. Erwin, Peru, Ind. If you have any you good. Adv.

CHAMBERLAIN'S COLIC AND DIARRHOEA REMEDY.

Every family should keep this preparation at hand ready for instant use when needed. Severe attacks of colic and cholera morbus often prove fatal before medicine can be procured or a physician summoned. The uniform success that has attended the use of this remedy and the prompt cures which it has effected have made it a staple article of trade. Adv.

Sober Second Thought

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE impulses of our Nature do not lead us, they arouse us. And no man is fit to contend gloriously for a Fact or for a Cause until he is thoroughly aroused. But to act upon FIRST impulses is an unwise and most disastrous policy.

Halter your impulses with Sober Second Thought.

You will never lose anything by carefully thinking things over before you act. In fact, it is our Sober Second Thoughts that give us courage to carry through successfully what comes to us as necessary to be done. Cool heads are always wiser than hot heads.

Halter your impulses with Sober Second Thought.

Most of the regrets of the world arise from important things done on impulse, which if but introduced at once to Sober Second Thought, would not have been done at all. Many a man has resigned a good position on impulse only to be left for months and years working up to where he left off. Sober Second Thought is a companion worth cultivating.

Halter your impulses with Sober Second Thought.

Famous Timepieces.

There is one timepiece in an eastern museum known as the "Preservation watch," because it has a standing figure whose outstretched arms designate the hours and minutes. Another has nine dials, two of which show the Persian calendar of twenty-nine days and the Arabic calendar of thirty days, besides others indicating the changes of the moon and astronomical phenomena. Watches that strike the hours and blow the wind, and which can be read in the dark, and other strange and beautiful timepieces, are shown in the museum. They are the work of the finest workmen in the world.

To Induce Sleep.

When one is overworked or worried and cannot sleep, being gently rubbed all over with a towel wrung out of salt water generally has the desired effect. Deep breathing in fresh air is also excellent.

If your carpets and rugs are really attractive they more than half furnish your home.

No rugs manufactured can compare with Richardson's Superlative qualities for artistic design, coloring and excellent quality. New patterns being exhibited at Sorenson Brothers.

WHY THAT HEADACHE?

When you know the cause of a disease a cure may often be effected. This is particularly true of headache. Headache often results from constipation or a disordered condition of the stomach which may be corrected by taking a dose or two of Chamberlain's Tablets. Try it. These tablets are easy to take and mild and gentle in effect. Adv.
